“Eternal Dividends”

I recently read about a woman who bought a bright, abstract painting in a thrift store for a friend as a “gag gift.” She paid five dollars for the five and a half by four and half canvas. It was a hideous present. Her friend got a good laugh but turned down the painting because it was too big for her small apartment.

So the lady took the painting to another friend who happened to be an art professor. Turns out that it was an authentic Jackson Pollock painting, and was worth millions. Pollock was a leader in the American expressionist movement in the nineteen forties. No one knows how the painting ended up in the thrift store, but a treasure worth millions was just sitting there until this lady picked it up. Imagine, five dollars for a multi-million dollar painting.

You have an incredible treasure sitting in your home. Painted in it are the masterpieces of God’s plan for the salvation of your soul. Pick it up and read it this week – it will pay you eternal dividends.*

ELDERS CORNER:

The elders at Warners Chapel believe it is important to periodically visit and encourage the works we support with your contributions. On November 4th Steve Martin will leave for Zambia to visit the work of the “Zambia School of Biblical Studies”.

While there for 16 days he plans to: (1) Speak to the school students about the need to develop leadership in each congregation of the Lord’s church. (2) Attend the graduation ceremony of the present class of 20 students on November 15th. (3) Visit some of the areas in the bush where irrigation drip kits are being used. Warners sent 200 drip kits to Zambia in June of this year to be used by preachers to raise food for their families during the dry season. (4) To visit some of the congregations within traveling distance of the school to encourage them.

While there we will have many benevolence and evangelism opportunities. There is a need to reproduce some good teaching material for use by the brethren there. The students and instructors do evangelism campaigns on the weekend when money is available for gasoline ($6.00 per gallon). There is no money in the school operating budget for this. Several congregations have been started from these continuing efforts. If you would like to give money to help with benevolence and evangelism in this area of Zambia, please make your check to Warners Chapel and put it an envelope and write Zambia on the envelope.
