A CORDIAL WELCOME AWAITS YOU

JUNE 29, 2008

POINTING OUT A GREAT WEEK!

Our 2008 Vacation Bible School has been completed and it was a complete success! Actually it was a success before it began. Every year we plan months in advance to host a Vacation Bible School. The criterion for assessing its level of success is seen in the level of involvement. There were 160+ involved with Vacation Bible School this year. That number reflects 80% of our Sunday morning attendance. That shows that several have worked diligently to assure that this effort was successful.

I want to thank the Elders for continuing the efforts of many in the past to provide a week-long activity of learning, fellowship and fun for all ages. It is so great to see the enthusiasm on all of our faces during this week. It is so rewarding seeing young people eager to be challenged by God's word.

I also want to especially thank all those who taught or assisted with classes this week. Those who worked in the craft room and the office are to be commended as well for their special and very valuable efforts.

We would be remiss if we did not thank those who brought snacks, finger food, and drinks. Special thanks to Andy Santiago, Sherrill Stewart and Bob "The Grill Professor" Plunk for their part in providing refreshments, ice cream and hot dogs. Thanks to all. Can't wait to do it again next year.

Paul

ELDERS CORNER:

“You Gotta Be Dumb to Believe the Bible, Right?”

It starts out subtly. The religious characters in the TV shows are always a little weird. News reports focus on aberrations in the “Christian community” — people who either live in the past or are strange, simple, offbeat people, or hypocrites who don’t practice what they preach. In college it becomes more blatant. A biology professor or a psychology teacher comes right out and makes fun of anyone who still believes the Bible is anything more than a mistake-filled collection of ancient Jewish sayings.

You won’t get through your freshman year without being told that belief in God is for the back-woods, uneducated — though perhaps well-meaning — folks back home. It belongs to those who still use typewriters, think CDs are something you put in a bank, and think IPODs must be some kind of plant or something NASA invented. It is not for a person who is educated and intelligent. Only the uninformed, ignorant, or unbalanced believe the Bible. No one takes anyone seriously who takes the Bible seriously.

So what about that?

Let’s start at the beginning: Do you believe in God? “My parents do, I think. My grandmother does for sure. Everybody at church does, so I guess I do. I mean, everybody believes in God, don’t they?”

No, you will find some who positively don’t. And unless you absolutely do, then you may end up on their side.
